THE MOST HONOURABLE ORDER OF THE BATH (GCB / KCB / CB)

When the Most Illustrious Order of St. Patrick, National Order for Ireland was phased out with the death of the Duke of Gloucester in 1974, the Order of the Bath became the third highest Order of Chivalry. Merit and Service were to be the conditions for admission to this Order as opposed to most admissions to the Garter and Thistle being because of birth and nobility. The Order was founded in 1399 and probably took its name from the preparations for the knighthood ceremony where new knights would purify their inner souls by fasting, vigils and prayer, and then cleansing their body by immersing themselves in a bath. The Order was revived in 1725 as a military order with one class of Knights (K.B.). In 1815, the Order was enlarged to three classes:

Knights Grand Cross	(GCB)
Knights Commander	(KCB)
Companions	(CB)

There was a civil division of the Knights Grand Cross while all others were to be military officers. In 1847, a civil division for all three classes was established with numbers set as follows:

GCB	95 total	68 military	27 civil
KCB	285 total	173 military	112 civil
CB	1,498 total	943 military	555 civil

The motto of the order is "Tria Juncta in Uno" (Three joined in one) which either refers to the three golden crowns within a golden circle worn on the badge, or the three crowns as symbolic of the Union of England, France and Scotland, or the Union of England, Scotland and Ireland or the Holy Trinity.

The Chapel of the Order is the King Henry the Seventh Chapel in Westminster Abbey.

The Great Master of the Order is the Prince of Wales.

Females were not admitted to the Order until 1971.

The insignia of the order are as follows:

- a) GCB: The Collar of gold is composed of nine crowns and eight devices (the devices are made up of a rose, a thistle and a shamrock issuing from a sceptre all enameled in their proper colours). The crowns and devices are linked together with gold, white-enameled knots. The Military Badge is a

The obverse and reverse of the badge are the same. The Civil Badge is oval and is of gold filigree work. It consists of a bandlet bearing the motto, and in the centre is the usual device of the rose, thistle and shamrock issuing from a sceptre, and the three crowns. The Riband is dark red (crimson), four inches wide and is worn over the right shoulder with the badge on the left hip when the collar is not worn. The Military Star is a silver flaming star with a gold Maltese cross overall with the centre device of three Imperial Crowns surrounded by the red enamel and green laurel as described for the badge. The blue enamel scroll outlined in gold is also present. The Civil Star is similar to the military star but does not have the Maltese Cross nor the green laurel or blue enamel. The Mantle is of crimson satin lined with white taffeta and on the left side of the mantle is embroidered a representation of the star of the Order.

b) KCB: The Military Badge and Civil Badge are similar to the GCB badges but slightly smaller and are worn suspended round the neck from a crimson ribbon, 38-mm wide. The Military Star is in the shape of a silver cross pattee without the Maltese Cross but with the centre similar to that of the GCB. The Civil Star is a silver cross pattee with a central device of three crowns upon a silver ground, encircled by the motto on a red enamel ribbon.

c) CB: The Military Badge and Civil Badge are identical to the G.C.B. but smaller - the military badge being two inches across.

Until 1 June 1917, the badge was worn on the left breast, from a straight suspender, with a pronged buckle on a 38-mm crimson ribbon.

Since then, it has been worn at the neck from a 38-mm crimson ribbon.

KCB Military Star

RIBBON: For all three classes, the crimson ribbon, 38-mm wide, is worn in undress.

INGLIS, John Eardley Wilmot
Halifax, Nova Scotia

Major-General British Army
"Defence of Lucknow for 87 days in 1857"

Major-General Sir John Eardley Wilmot Inglis (15 November 1814 – 27 September 1862), was born in Nova Scotia, Canada, the son of John Inglis, the third bishop of that colony and grandson of Charles Inglis (bishop). He was married to Julia Selina Thesiger (1833–1904), daughter of Alfred Thesiger who wrote of her experiences during the siege of Lucknow including extracts from her diary. Their children included Rupert Edward Inglis who was an England rugby international, who was killed at the Battle of the Somme in 1916.

In 1833 he joined the 32nd (Cornwall) Regiment of Foot, in which all his regimental service was passed. In 1837 he saw active service in Canada in the Lower Canada Rebellion, including the actions at St. Denis and St. Eustache.

During the Second Anglo-Sikh War, in 1848 to 1849 in the Punjab, He was in command at the Siege of Multan and at the Battle of Gujrat.

In 1857, on the outbreak of the Indian Mutiny, he was in command of his regiment at Lucknow. Sir Henry Lawrence being mortally wounded during the siege of the residency. Inglis thus took command of the garrison, and maintained a successful defence for 87 days against an overwhelming force. He was promoted to major-general and made K.C.B. for this action. After further active service in India, he was, in 1860, given command of the British troops in the Ionian Islands.

He died at Homburg on 27 September 1862, aged 47 and was buried in the crypt of Saint Paul's Cathedral, London.

DARLING, Charles Henry

Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia

Governor of Newfoundland (1855 - 1857)

Governor of Jamaica (1857 - 1863)

'Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief in and over the Island of Jamaica and its dependencies'

Sir Charles Henry Darling KCB (19 February 1809 – 25 January 1870) was a British colonial governor. He was born at Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, the son of Major-General Henry Darling and nephew of General Sir Ralph Darling. He was educated at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, and served in the garrisons of Barbados, the Windward Islands, and Jamaica, with the 57th Foot.

He started his colonial service while in Jamaica and became Lieutenant-Governor of St. Lucia in 1847. He became Lieutenant-Governor of the Cape Colony in South Africa in 1851. He became Governor of Newfoundland in 1855 to 1857.

Darling supported the British suggestions granting the French more fishing rights in waters of Newfoundland between Cape St. John and Cape Ray to the total disagreement of the Newfoundland government which ultimately lead to the end of his term in office.

Darling became governor and captain-chief of Jamaica in 1857 then governor of Victoria, Australia from 1863 to 1866.

He married firstly on 2 May 1835 to Anne Wilhelmina Dalzell (born 18 July 1813, who died 16 October 1837 and they had a son, who died in infancy. He married, secondly, at Christ Church, Barbados, on 14 December 1839 to Mary Ann Nurse (who died of yellow fever in St Lucia on 6 November 1848). He married, thirdly, at Ilfracombe, North Devon on 10 December 1851 to Elizabeth Isabella Caroline Salter (born around 1820 – died 10 December 1900). Charles Henry Darling died at Lansdown Crescent, Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, aged 60.

⁴ Edward O'Hara

Born: 1767 in Gaspé, Quebec

Died: 24 June 1833 near London, England

Businessman, army officer and political figure in Lower Canada

Moved to Quebec City in 1789 and, with Robert Woolsey, opened a store there which sold shoes, clothing and fabrics.

He was elected to the Legislative Assembly of Lower Canada in Gaspé in 1792 with the support of merchant Charles Robin - re-elected in 1796.

In 1795, he was named a justice of the peace for the Gaspé district.

In 1800, he joined the British Army, becoming a Lieutenant-Colonel in 1813. He served in India and at the 1810 capture of Guadeloupe.

In 1815, he was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath (CB). He retired in 1822 and died near London, England in 1833.

Civilian after 1820

After his injury Beckwith had returned to his parents in Halifax where he became a founder and patron of the town's first Sunday school established in connection with St George's Church. After 1825 this Sunday school continued under the direction of the rector Robert Fitzgerald Uniacke. Beckwith also took an interest in the Royal Acadian School founded by Captain Walter Bromley* for poor children.

In 1826 Beckwith was invited to visit the Duke of Wellington at Apsley House in London; there he read Dr William Stephen Gilly's Narrative of an excursion to the mountains of Piemont. This book led him to become concerned with the plight of a small group of Protestants known as Waldensians or Vaudois who lived in the Piedmont valleys near Pinerolo. Beckwith visited the Waldensians for several years, then decided to make his headquarters near Turin and devote the rest of his life to assisting them. Drawing on his experience in Halifax, he worked to improve Waldensian schools some of which were as "ill-built as barns, as dirty as stables." He collected money from friends in England, visited the schools, urged building of new schools by the community, sent teachers to Lausanne and Florence for training, and encouraged the education of women. In all he opened or restored 120 district schools.

When King Charles Albert of Sardinia adopted a more liberal policy and allowed Italian to be spoken, Beckwith sent young pastors and teachers to Florence to facilitate the process of substituting Italian for French. In 1848, in recognition of his labours with the Waldensians, Beckwith received the cross of St Maurice and St Lazarius from the king. In 1850 he married a Waldensian, Anne Susanne Caroline Valle.
