THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORDER OF ST. MICHAEL and ST. GEORGE
GCMG / KCMG / CMG

When the Island of Malta and the seven Ionian Islands came under British protection in 1814, a new order was needed to reward the Ionians and Maltese who had assisted the King of England. Thus an order of three classes was created for this purpose. The Ionian Islands were ceded to Greece in 1864 and in 1868 the Order of Saint Michael and St. George was remodeled so that members must be subjects of the British Crown or such British protected persons as are connected with any of the territories under the protection and administration of the British Sovereign. They must either hold or have held high and confidential offices or have rendered extraordinary and important services within or in relation to any part of the Commonwealth beyond the seas or in territories under British protection or administration. Those who have rendered important or loyal services in relation to foreign affairs are also eligible for appointment to the order.

For the military, the order served as a junior Order of the Bath with many officers being awarded this order and later the Order of the Bath if they achieved higher rank or appointments. With the institution of the Order of the British Empire in 1917, the Order of Saint Michael and Saint George became reserved more for diplomats, members of the Foreign Service and for those who had performed valuable administrative service in connection with the colonies and the countries of the commonwealth overseas. The Order does not have separate civil and military division, as does the Order of the Bath. There is only one division made up of three classes:

GCMG (Knights Grand Cross), maximum 100 members and not more than 7 per annum;

KCMG (Knights Commander), maximum 355 and not more than 24 members per annum, and;

CMG (Companions), maximum 1,435 members and not more than 103 per annum.

As with the Order of the Bath, the first two classes confer Knighthood and the third class does not confer knighthood.

The motto of the order is: PUSPICIUM MELIORIS AEVI -- "Token of a Better Age".

The chapel of the order is in the south-west corner of Saint Paul's Cathedral.

The Order has two major days, 23 April (St. George's day) and 29 September (St. Michael and All Angels day).

The Grand Master is the Duke of Kent.

INSIGNIA of the ORDER of ST. MICHAEL and ST. GEORGE

FIRST CLASS / GCMG:

The COLLAR of gold is composed of 24 links of alternating gold cyphers SM (4) or SG (4), Maltese crosses in white enamel (8) and royally crowned lions of England (8) joined in the centre by two winged lions, each holding a book and seven arrows with a large Imperial crown over the books. The BADGE hangs from the collar and is a seven-armed cross with v shaped extremities, surmounted by the Imperial Crown. The obverse of the badge has in the centre a representation of St. Michael encountering Satan within a blue, circular riband bearing the motto, AUSPICIUM MELIORIS AEVI. The reverse has in the centre St. George on horseback fighting the dragon surrounded by a circle of blue enamel bearing the motto in gold. The badge is enameled white and edged in gold. The MANTLE is of saxon-blue satin lined with scarlet silk, tied with cords of blue and gold, and having on the left side the star of the Order. The CHAPEAU is of blue satin, lined with scarlet, and surmounted by black and white ostrich feathers. When the collar is not worn, ordinary full dress wear has the badge hung from a RIBAND, 4 inches wide, Saxon blue with a central scarlet stripe (of equal width to the blue). The riband passes over the right shoulder with the badge on the left hip. When the riband is worn, a STAR is worn on the left breast. The star has seven rays of silver (each gold ray having three separate rays), with smaller gold rays between each major ray (each gold ray having three separate rays) and over all the Cross of St. George in red enamel edged in gold. In the centre is a representation of St. Michael encountering Satan within a blue, circular riband bearing the motto in gold, AUSPICIUM MELIORIS AEVI.

SECOND CLASS / KCMG:

Knight Commanders wear a similar but smaller BADGE around their neck and wear a similar but smaller STAR on the left breast.

THIRD CLASS / C.M.G.:

Until 1917, Companions wore their BADGE from a straight suspender, with a pronged buckle from a 1.5 inches RIBBON of watered stripes of saxon-blue, scarlet, and Saxon blue. Since that time, the smaller (1.75 inches across) badge is worn around the neck from the watered blue/scarlet/blue ribbon.

The ribbon for the CMG is worn in undress by members of all three classes and is 1.5 inches wide.

His Son: Lieutenant Francis Malloch Gibson

908 Lieutenant Francis Malloch Gibson (RMC 1911) was born 11th June 1893, the youngest son of Major-General Sir John Morison Gibson, KCMG, and Lady Gibson, of Ravenscliffe, Hamilton, Ontario. He studied at Highfield in 1908 and entered R.M.C. Sept. 1911.

Frank Gibson had a brilliant career at School, winning a high place in the R.M.C. examination and the Governor-General's medal for Proficiency. He was a good athlete and a clever marksman. R.M.C. had fitted him for a soldier's life, and he gave to his country the full benefit of his complete training undiminished by the enervating influences of a civilian life. He served with the 15th Battalion, 48th Highlanders, Canadian Infantry (Central Ontario Regiment).

He was Killed in Action on 19 August 1915 at 22 years of age near Armentieres. He was buried in IX. C. 2. Cite Bonjean Military Cemetery in Nord, France. He is commemorated on the Memorial Tablet at Hillfield-Strathallan College, the Memorial Arch at the Royal Military College of Canada, the Osgood Hall Memorial Tablet, the Gibson family memorial and Page 16 of the First World War Book of Remembrance. Also see `Echoes that Remain` by M.B. (Barry) Wansbrough, (2001 Hillfield Strathallan College).
