On 11 March 2011, His Excellency the Right Honourable David Johnston, Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of Canada, announces the awarding of three Stars of Military Valour and two Medals of Military Valour, as well as one Meritorious Service Cross, three Meritorious Service Medals and one Mention in Dispatches, to members of the Canadian Special Operations Forces Command (CANSOFCOM).

These members received their decorations today during a ceremony at Rideau Hall in the presence of the Chief of the Defence Staff. They were recognized for devotion and acts of valour in the presence of the enemy and for military deeds performed in a highly professional manner. For security and operational reasons, recipients’ names and citations are not released.”

"During the period 4 July 1982 to 5 August 1984, Lieutenant-Colonel W.J. McCullough was the Canadian Forces Attaché at the Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon. The period was marked by the complete collapse of law and order, and assaults on diplomats and diplomatic premises. Throughout his tour Lieutenant-Colonel McCullough undertook a number of significant military and diplomatic tasks. Notwithstanding considerable personal risk, including frequent exposure to both small arms and artillery fire, he travelled extensively to maintain essential contacts with Lebanese agencies. During the times when the Chancery was under threat of fire, his exceptional professionalism and calm competence were a constant source of reassurance to all members of the Embassy staff. Throughout his tour, Lieutenant-Colonel McCullough performed both military and related duties in an outstandingly professional manner, of such a rare high standard as to reflect great credit on himself and the Canadian Forces."

"During the period 7 November 1983 to 11 August 1984, Sergeant L.D. Abbott was the non-commissioned officer in charge of military police security guards at the Canadian Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon. The period was marked by the complete collapse of law and order, and assaults on diplomats and diplomatic premises. In the performance of protective and other duties, Sergeant Abbott frequently risked his life over an extended period to ensure the safety of both Canadian and locally employed staff members. When a drastic reduction in staff taxed resources to their fullest, he assumed the additional duties associated with two officer positions, performing them with a rare high standard of both flexibility and adaptability. His leadership, professional expertise and qualities of character made a deep impression on all members of the Embassy staff. Sergeant Abbott's outstandingly professional performance of military duties, tailored to the priority needs of the Canadian Government in Lebanon and frequently beyond those normal for his rank, have brought great credit to both himself and the Canadian Forces."

GH: 22 October 1986
DOI: 28 June 1984 & 20 May 1985

On 28 June 1984, as the Acting Chief of Staff and during the absence of the Force Commander, Lieutenant-Colonel Ethell made arrangements for an exchange of more than 300 prisoners of war between Syria and Israel. This delicate exchange, which had been more than two years in the making, was effected with only 36 hours advance notice. Furthermore, it was conducted under the threat of armed intervention from both sides and a myriad of other distractions which could have jeopardized the arrangements. Lieutenant-Colonel Ethell's leadership and personal supervision averted any such calamity, and thereby secured both the reputation and future role of the United Nations with the two countries. Similarly, on 20 May 1985, he was instrumental in effecting an exchange of 154 Palestinian prisoners held by Israel for three Israelis held by Syria. Lieutenant-Colonel Ethell's outstanding professional performance of military duties was of a rare, high standard that has been applauded by senior military officers, diplomats and civilians of many nations, reflecting great credit on both himself and the Canadian Forces.

"On 27 July 1985, a military coup erupted in Kampala, Uganda, resulting in the overthrow of the civilian government, widespread civil disobedience, and the creation of a volatile situation throughout the area. Though on a routine visit and notwithstanding great personal risk, Colonel Frazer effected liaison with allied embassy staffs in the area and with the Canadian High Commissioner in Kenya. Showing exceptional perceptiveness and good judgement, he energetically assisted in the creation of a highly successful evacuation plan. During the evacuation, his calm and decisive leadership instilled confidence among the members of the group, from 10 western nations, when panic would have exacerbated the threat. Consistently, when confronted by the Ugandan military, he used his authority with restraint but complete effectiveness to resolve potentially life-threatening situations. Colonel Frazer's selfless, outstandingly professional performance of military duties at a rare, high standard has brought great credit to both himself and the Canadian Forces."

Awarded Officer of the Order of Military Merit (OMM) awarded as per Canada Gazette of 19 June 1978 in the rank of Colonel.

Colonel John (‘Jack’) Loughton FRAZER, OMM, MSC, CD, MP

Colonel John (Jack) Loughton Frazer slipped the surly bonds of earth at 1122 hours on 17 December 2012. Jack passed away after a brief illness in Victoria, BC, with family at his side. Born in Kamloops on December 20, 1931, Jack leaves behind his wife of 56 years, June, son Bradley (Susan) and daughters Lee Valentine (David) and Kimberly Mann (Kelly) as well as many friends from around the world. Jack was predeceased by his son Drew in 1984 and grandson Paul in 1998. Jack was a loving and supportive Opa to Scott (Amy), Spencer, Manley, Lindsay, and Rodel and Great Opa to Bella.

Jack was a proud member of the Canadian Forces, spanning the years 1951 to 1986 where he attained the rank of Colonel and was awarded the Order of Military Merit, Meritorious Service Cross and the Canadian Forces Decoration. While in the RCAF, Jack commanded several different units and squadrons in Canada, the US and Europe, and flew a variety of aircraft including the F86 Sabre and the CF-104 Starfighter. In 1954 he became a member of the Fireballs aerobatic team performing air shows throughout Europe. He was selected to join the RCAF Golden Hawks aerobatic team in 1961.

In 1983 Jack was posted to Zimbabwe where, as Military Attaché, he was accredited to Zimbabwe, Mozambique, Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda and Botswana. In 1985 while on a routine visit to Uganda, a coup d’état occurred. Jack met with the British High Commission in Kampala and assisted in organizing the evacuation of the citizens of ten western nations from Uganda to Kenya. For his actions, Jack was awarded the Meritorious Service Cross by Governor General Jean Sauvé.

In 1986 Jack and June returned to Canada and retired on Salt Spring Island. On Salt Spring, the Frazers were regular supporters of Legion Branch 92 and patrons of the Chemainus Theatre. The annual April 1st RCAF celebration, inspired by Jack, was a cornerstone of their social calendar, as it brought back so many memories of a great career. Retirement also meant extensive travels including many cruise and barge holidays and of course his beloved SPAADS and 104 Association reunions with his former fellow fliers.

As a Reform Party member, Jack was elected Member of Parliament for Saanich-Gulf Islands in October 1993. He served as Defence and Veterans Affairs Critic and Deputy Whip and sat on seven Parliamentary Committees during the 35th Parliament. His Private Members Bill establishing the Canadian Peacekeeping Service Medal was passed into law in 1997. Retiring from politics in 1997, Jack was appointed to the Veterans Review and Appeal Board after which he retired for the third and final time. Jack was subsequently awarded the Queen's Diamond Jubilee Medal for service to his country.

"On December 12, 1986, the Base Defence Force, Canadian Forces Base Gander, responded to the scene of the Arrow Air aircraft disaster which claimed the lives of 256 personnel, most of whom were members of the 101st Airborne Division, United States Army. Under command of then-Lieutenant Aubin and doubled in size for this task, the Defence Force worked in co-operation with civilian police forces and other military agencies, ensured area security, conducted searches for weapons and personal belongings, and evacuated casualties. Captain Aubin personally worked extraordinarily long days, ensuring maximum effectiveness of the Force and inspiring his personnel to respond beyond the normal call of duty under the most stressful of conditions. His professionalism and leadership throughout this demanding assignment made a deep impression on everyone associated with the operation. Captain Aubin's outstanding professional performance of his military duties at a rare, high standard has brought great credit to himself and the Canadian Forces."

U.S. Navy Commendation Medal awarded as per Canadian Gazette 21 January 1995 in the rank of Captain.

This is the only US Navy Commendation Medal gazetted since 1995. Because it is not awarded by the President of the USA but by a Unit Commander, it is not eligible for wear. However, since it was gazetted, I suspect this one could be worn.

"During August 1986, while employed as a Company Commander on United Nations peacekeeping duties in Nicosia, Cyprus, Major O'Brien was involved in three potentially volatile situations when ordered to re-establish a United Nations presence in a disputed area of the Buffer Zone. Each occurrence led to a confrontation with armed Turkish-Cypriot forces who were determined to proclaim sovereignty over the area. Despite physical abuse and numerous threats of death at gunpoint, he maintained his composure and, by exercising authority with restraint, successfully stabilized each situation. He thereby enabled the development of a successful conclusion to a long-standing problem.

Major O'Brien's outstanding professional performance of military duties at a rare, high standard has brought great credit to himself and the Canadian Forces."

"While employed as a Section Commander on United Nations peacekeeping duties in Nicosia, Cyprus, Sergeant Pengelly was involved in a potentially explosive situation on August 28, 1986. Ordered to occupy a small chapel normally used by armed Turkish-Cypriot forces as a sentry post in a disputed area of the Buffer Zone, he and his patrol wrested control without recourse to weapons fire. Later, they were confronted by a reinforced company of Turkish-Cypriot soldiers who attempted to physically remove Sergeant Pengelly and threatened to shoot the patrol. Sergeant Pengelly, exercising extreme restraint, reassured the young Turkish-Cypriot soldiers of their safety, but resisted all attempts to remove him. Subsequently, after the situation was defused, he remained unarmed in the chapel for an extended period in a gesture of good faith, which further reduced tension in the area.

Sergeant Pengelly's poise and outstanding professional performance of military duties at a rare, high standard reflect great credit on himself and the Canadian Forces."

"During August 1986, while employed on peacekeeping duties in Nicosia, Cyprus, Private St. Denis was involved in three potentially volatile situations as a member of a patrol endeavouring to re-establish a United Nations presence in a disputed area of the Buffer Zone. Each occurrence led to a confrontation with armed Turkish-Cypriot forces who were determined to proclaim sovereignty over the area. Even in the face of extreme provocation, and despite physical abuse and numerous threats of death at gunpoint, he maintained his composure and, in a calm, professional manner, repeatedly and clearly conveyed his resolve and the intention of the United Nations force to exercise its rights within the Buffer Zone.

Private St. Denis' outstanding professional performance of military duties at a rare, high standard has brought great credit to himself and the Canadian Forces."

He was commissioned and became a Lieutenant-Colonel and Commanded the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada until 2014.
"On the night of October 6, 1986, Captain Kleemann was the crew commander and pilot of a Sea King helicopter launched from HMCS Nipigon to rescue two seriously-injured crewman from the fishing vessel 'Sea Hawk'. Due to the vessel's small size and configuration, only a 2-metre by 2.5 metre stern deck area was suitable for a hoist rescue. Weather conditions were deplorable, with 6-metre seas, winds gusting to 45 knots and very poor visibility due to darkness and rain. Despite using the lee of a nearby large bulk carrier to gain some protection from the seas, the 'Sea Hawk' continued to pitch erratically, and standard rescue procedures repeatedly failed. Captain Kleemann then boldly manoeuvred his helicopter lower and perilously close to both ships under such arduous conditions that the slightest error would have been catastrophic. With exceptional skill and the finest of crew coordination, he achieved a hover just above the 'Sea Hawk's' wildly pitching stern from which the rescue was completed.

Captain Kleemann's outstanding professional performance of his military duty at a rare high standard has brought great credit to both himself and the Canadian Forces."

"Since his posting to Europe in 1983, Major MacKenzie has been the driving force in the development of NATO's Battlefield Information Collection and Exploitation System. This project fills a long-standing Alliance need, but its magnitude and complexity had previously daunted all. Although initially only a project observer, Major MacKenzie took up the prodigious challenge and through foresight, personal confidence, commitment and work, moved the project from concept to practical reality. He unilaterally effected essential studies now adopted as the only trials in the vital pre-feasibility phase; addressed needs for complex computer equipment, funding and training and galvanized moribund staff. In the process he became the project's linchpin and earned a high international reputation for effectiveness well beyond his rank and original responsibilities. Due in large part to his personal efforts, agreement now exists on the proposal between the six NATO headquarters and the seven nations involved.

Major MacKenzie's outstanding professional performance of military duties at a rare, high standard has brought great credit to himself and the Canadian Forces."

"In late 1987, Lieutenant-Colonel Knutsen was entrusted with a highly sensitive and technically specialized project of great military importance to Canada. He quickly became both the catalyst and driving force behind the project. He applied himself with ceaseless devotion to flying special missions and analyzing data. He directed the planning and execution of several trials, brought together operational, engineering, intelligence and scientific representatives, and effectively focused their work. His diligence and drive culminated in the success of this very special and important project in maritime operations for the defence of Canada.

"In 1987, then Master Seaman Goodwin was a member of a diving team working to salvage a Sea King helicopter which had made an emergency landing at sea. The aircraft sank in 240 feet of water, and the team had to contend with violent seas, strong underwater currents, the continuous cork-like motion of its diving tender and numerous setbacks in order to accomplish its mission.

In early November, Petty Officer Goodwin and others operated a remote Deep Access Reconnaissance Television (DART) to gain the first positive contact with the aircraft. During a storm, contact was lost, and initial relocation attempts from the surface were unsuccessful in the cold, rough seas. Contact was finally re-established and manned dives commenced 28-29 November, with Petty Officer Goodwin leading the third dive. On the sea bottom, a quick assessment based on his DART experience caused him to abandon an unproductive circle search and follow a magnetic compass bearing from the maker line. An unscaleable rock cliff blocked his way and he was forced to move around it, freeing his umbilical line from the rocks and sea current, before he could sight the aircraft and reach the wreck.

Both finding and marking the aircraft required great determination and physical effort, and exceeded the optimum bottom time. Diving and decompression time, with specialized breathing equipment which accelerated body heat loss, were almost doubled in extremely cold water. Although the marker was lost again during a subsequent storm, Petty Officer Goodwin's success provided positive knowledge that the aircraft was accessible and recoverable, and strengthened the spirit of the entire salvage team. Storms and shifting currents continued to complicate the operation, but, throughout, Petty Officer Goodwin’s cheerful and positive attitude despite the adverse conditions, his unquestioning acceptance of all tasks and his position at the forefront of all activity provided leadership and direction to the more junior divers. Under very difficult and dangerous conditions for all involved, his performance far surpassed that normally expected.

Petty Officer Goodwin's outstanding professional performance during the salvage operation was at a rare high standard and has brought great credit to himself, his unit and the Canadian Forces."

This incident is described in detail in 'Sentinel-Magazine of the Canadian Forces' 1988/4, page 11 'Sea King Salvage'.

"Major Rioux was the staff officer responsible for co-ordinating the activities of the UN Central Region Command Angola during the battle of Huambo in January 1992. Major Rioux was in charge of headquarters staff from a number of different countries and with varying degrees of ability and personal courage. Although not the senior officer present, he prevented panic among the unarmed observers and kept headquarters disciplined and operational by his strength of character. During the fighting and the subsequent retreat under small-arms fire, he personally led the patrols and organized the evacuation of Red Cross and United Nations personnel in immediate danger. His professionalism, cool-headedness and courage during this trial contributed to the safe withdrawal of both civilian and military personnel with few casualties."

"In November 1993, Sergeant Stevenson led a ten-person patrol to provide security and assistance to the Drin and Bakovici Psychiatric hospitals in Bosnia-Hercegovina, directly in the path of the advancing Croatian army. The civilian staff had hastily evacuated, locking the 530 long-care, mentally and physically handicapped patients in their rooms. Conditions were pitiful, with no central heating or electricity. The vast majority of patients, both children and adults, were incontinent and required spoon feeding. Led by Sergeant Stevenson, the small patrol took over total responsibility, maintaining both defence and humanitarian support, even as fighting crept to the edges of the hospital grounds. Sergeant Stevenson's actions and leadership exemplify a principal United Nations goal in Bosnia, that of care and assistance to the innocent victims of war."

From 1986 to 1988, in the rank of brigadier-general, he served as Chief of Staff of UN Forces in Cyprus (UNFICYP) followed by appointment as Director-General Military Plans and Operations for the Canadian Forces. Promoted major-general in 1989, he served as associate Assistant Deputy Minister for Policy and later as Chief of Force Development and Operational Planning at Canada’s defence headquarters. He moved to Halifax in 1992 to set up and run Land Force Atlantic Area, the organization to command the army units in the four Atlantic Provinces.

In 1993, he worked as Deputy Force Commander and Commander Canadian Contingent of the UN Forces in the former Yugoslavia (UNPROFOR). Upon returning to Canada in July 1994, he was immediately recalled to Zagreb to set up a special UN/NATO planning team.

Since his retirement from active service in 1995, he has been a Senior Fellow at the Lester B. Pearson Canadian International Peacekeeping Training Centre in Nova Scotia, a member of the Group of International Advisors to the ICRC (International Committee of the Red Cross) in Geneva (1995 – 2000) and a member of the advisory board of the Canadian Landmine Foundation.
Early in 1996, he was a member of the International Crisis Group’s (ICG) Bosnia team in Sarajevo, assisting in the implementation of the Dayton Peace Accords.

In November 1996, he took up the position of Chief of the UN’s Mine Clearance and Policy unit in the Department of Humanitarian Affairs, directing the UN’s involvement in mine clearance and related activities around the world. He returned to Ottawa in January 1998.

In the fall of 1998 and again in 1999, as a member of the senior directing staff, he helped run the Advanced Military Studies Course at the Canadian Forces College in Toronto.

Early in 1999, he assisted the Defensor del Pueblo (ombudsman) of Peru in assessing the humanitarian mine problem in that country. In May, he was invited to assist the Special Envoy of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in preparing for and managing the return of refugees to Kosovo. As the military/security/political advisor, he set up the humanitarian liaison framework with NATO’s KOSOVO Force (KFOR), initiated projects to enhance refugee camp security and management in Macedonia and Albania and to enhance Albania’s capacity to provide security to the refugees. He accompanied the first UN humanitarian convoy into Kosovo on 13 June 99.

In the spring of 2000, he assisted the World Bank and UNDP Sri Lanka in the development of a Framework for Relief, Rehabilitation and Reconciliation. Unfortunately, continuation of the conflict prevented significant advancement. He continues to support the Canadian Forces College, the Pearson Peacekeeping Centre, and the Hawaii based Center of Excellence in Peacekeeping and Disaster Management as a subject matter expert on the military aspects of conflict resolution.

Major-General MacInnis received the honor of becoming the fourteenth Colonel Commandant of The Royal Regiment of Canadian Artillery on 22 September 2001 and stepdown as Colonel Commandant on 15 September 2007.

"Colonel Oehring assumed command of Sector South in the former Yugoslavia in September 1993 and, by May 1994, was instrumental in securing and maintaining a comprehensive cease-fire agreement in the most sensitive and violent area of Croatia. That agreement became the cornerstone of others throughout the country, and led to extensive removal of minefields in the area and significant improvements in the living conditions of the local inhabitants. His leadership, professionalism and diplomatic skill helped forge many non-military agencies into an enthusiastic, co-operative and effective team for the benefit of all."

"Major Thomas was a Senior Military Observer in Sarajevo, Bosnia-Hercegovina, during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's ultimatum and subsequent enforcement of the 20-kilometre Exclusion Zone in 1994. He led 170 United Nations Military Observers from many nations in the supervision and enforcement of the Sarajevo Ceasefire Agreement, which made a significant contribution to the lives of tens of thousands of people in that war-ravaged city. His exceptional competence, courage and dedication during that difficult and dangerous period brought great credit to himself, the Canadian Forces and Canada."

Francis Roy Thomas. But I'm normally called Roy. I joined the Canadian Military in 1962. And I retired in 1998. And during that period of time I served in the Royal Canadian Armoured Corps in three different armoured regiments - the Fort Gary Horse, the Lord Strathcona's Horse and the 8th Canadian Hussars. Fortunately, or not so fortunately, during this same period I served in seven different United Nations missions.

My first mission was with a reconnaissance troop in Cyprus. Then, almost ten years later, in 1977 I served first on the Golan Heights, with UNDOF and then with United Nations Truce Supervisory Organization based in Jerusalem. And we did a lot of work in South Lebanon and that is where I was high-jacked. Then, twelve years later in 1989, at very short notice, I was deployed to Afghanistan to serve as again as a Military Observer.

From Afghanistan I returned to Canada, only to find myself in Macedonia in 1993. From Macedonia, I went to Sarajevo, Bosnia. And in 1993 it was a very exciting place to be. I was nine months in Sarajevo as the Senior Military Observer. My final United Nations tour was in Haiti where, in fact, the mission underwent a major change while I was there. The American Commander was replaced by a Canadian and our force shrank from 6,000 soldiers to 1,800.

Probably the most emotional and significant incident in my four and a half years of UN service was in South Lebanon. We had had a lot of hijackings. Vehicles were being taken and the parties that took the vehicles could be supporting either Israel or the Palestinian Liberation Organization or some of them were probably just thugs. But it was hard to identify. And as the Operations Officer working out of UNSO Headquarters in Jerusalem, I tried to be very familiar with every route taken by the observation post reliefs. So as a result, I scheduled myself to go in with these reliefs and it was on one of these that I was high-jacked myself. We were driving down the road with the relief party in a convoy of two vehicles, very well spaced out, and there was a civilian vehicle that was obviously trying to pass us. We suspected that he didn't mean good, and when there was enough space for him to get by, he managed to get by, four people jumped out and they immediately stopped us at gun point and forced us to get out of the vehicle. We were forced back in at gun point, into the vehicle and we were taken up a side road and then kicked out.

I must admit I was very nervous during this whole incident. The guy that had his gun pointed at my head, had his hand on the trigger and it was shaking. If you could have seen my hands, it was probably also shaking. Fortunately for us, some civilians, who put themselves at risk, saw us being dumped on the road and they took us inside their house and kept us there until another UN vehicle came by looking for us and picked us up. I still will remember this because of the kindness of those people who took us in and kept us out of sight, knowing full well that they could be accused of harbouring Westerners and people from North America. And this put them at risk with all of the belligerents in that area.

"In 1994, while serving as Military Assistant to the Force Commander of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Rwanda, Major Beardsley faced armed and hostile civilian crowds, as well as belligerent forces, to rescue Rwandans, Canadians and others. He twice entered a riotous crowd to save a family from being mobbed, after convincing rebel soldiers that their forcible intervention would breach the terms of the accord that stationed them in the capital. He also braved violent crowds to escort the Force Commander to headquarters, to rescue a doctor and nurse who were being assaulted, and to take a man with a severe machete wound to the hospital. After the assassination of the President of Rwanda and the start of the massacres, he coordinated and led the rescues of numerous Canadian and foreign nationals. In an environment of wanton destruction and killing, Major Beardsley's calm and timely actions met the highest professional standards and brought great credit to himself, the Canadian Forces, and Canada."

Major Brent Beardsley holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in History from Concordia University, a Post-Graduate Diploma in Education from McGill University and completed a Masters of Applied Military Science degree at the Royal Military College of Canada. His service has included tours with all three battalions of The Royal Canadian Regiment in Canada, Germany, and Cyprus; as an instructor at the Canadian Forces Officer Candidate School; as a doctrine author at the Directorate of Land Force Development and as a Military Observer / Staff Officer with the United Nations Assistance Mission for Rwanda. Major Beardsley is a graduate of the Canadian Forces Staff School, the Canadian Land Force Command and Staff College and the Land Force Technical Staff Course. He ended his career as the Staff Officer Training Technology with the Directorate of Army Training and is a contributor to the development of the Army LOAC Training Strategy.

"Colonel Lemieux, Commander of the United Nations Protection Force for the Bihac region between October 1994 and March 1995, was in charge of peacekeeping operations in one of the most complex, difficult and dangerous regions in the Balkans. His personal efforts and exceptional leadership were crucial to the success of the mission in north-western Bosnia during this period. The clear-sightedness of Colonel Lemieux during negotiations and co-ordination sessions prevented the outbreak of a number of major conflicts and enabled the tenuous cease-fire to be maintained. As a result, lives were saved and the suffering of the local population was considerably reduced."

Awarded Officer of the Order of Military Merit (OMM) as per Canada Gazette of 01 September 2001 in the rank of Brigadier-General.
“Lieutenant-Colonel Calvin was the commander of a reinforced battalion during difficult and hazardous United Nations operations in the Medak Pocket, Croatia, in September 1993. His unit, which included two French Army companies, secured a neutral zone between Croat and Serb forces in the face of deliberate destruction by those withdrawing. Battalion members were praised for their discipline, motivation and actions while under fire or personally threatened. Through personal leadership and example, Lieutenant-Colonel Calvin developed a cohesive team that carried out one of the most successful military operations in support of the humanitarian effort in this theatre.”

In September 1993, nearly 900 Canadian soldiers fought a forgotten battle in a brutal war. The Battle of Medak Pocket should have been celebrated as a story of Canadian heroism. Instead a pivotal moment in the country’s history became one of its lost chapters. In the aftermath of the 1991 breakup of the former Yugoslavia, Croatia’s war of independence was marked by mutual atrocities on its eastern border with the Republic of Serbian Krajina, a breakaway state propped up by Belgrade. Several thousand Canadians served in the United Nations mission to stabilize the region between 1992 and 1995, part of Canada’s many contributions to UN forces in the Balkans. For seven days in 1993, faced with the ethnic cleansing of Serb civilians by Croatian forces, the Second Battalion of the Princess Patricia’s Canadian Light Infantry took a stand. As they beat back fierce attacks, the soldiers watched villages burn and heard the screams of tortured victims.

The Battle of Medak Pocket was the most significant fighting for Canada’s forces since the Korean War. As many as 27 Croats were killed and four Canadians wounded. When it was over, the Canadian soldiers had pushed the Croats back to their original lines and restored the UN mission’s credibility. The battle would change the face of peacekeeping, and influence how the Canadian military approached post-traumatic stress disorder.

On Sept. 9, more than 2,500 Croat troops backed by tanks and artillery swept into the Medak Pocket. The Serb-controlled region of fertile farms and tiny villages, a few kilometres from the sunshine of the Adriatic coast, extended deep into Croatian territory. The Serb forces used it to attack the nearby Croatian town of Gospic, sending shells soaring over the Pocket’s 600 to 650 remaining inhabitants. The Croat assault was fast and brutal. By Sept. 12, their tanks were just a few minutes’ drive from the Canadian position in the town of Medak. Thousands of shells pounded the area, wounding four Canadian soldiers.

According to Royal Military College history professor Sean Maloney, the UN mission was in crisis as Serbs across the Balkans retaliated with new attacks. “If fighting in the Medak Pocket had continued, it would have spread across the region,” he says. But few expected the UN to do anything about it.

Under international pressure, the Croats finally agreed to pull back on Sept. 15. UN commander Lt.-Gen. Jean Cot ordered the Canadians to move in. His plan called for the Canadians to put themselves between the Croats and Serbs — who were still fighting — and push each side back. Canadian commander Col. Jim Calvin could have refused. The mission was far beyond the peacekeeping mandate. And without tanks, artillery or air support, they were badly outgunned.

Major-General Crabbe's remarkable diplomatic skills were critical to the Joint United Nations and North Atlantic Treaty Organization planning processes, and his personal involvement helped to prevent a resumption of war between the Croats and the Krajin Serbs in Sector South. Throughout his period of service, Major-General Crabbe's exceptional performance furthered the cause of peace in this troubled region."

<td>“From October 2001 to April 2002, Commodore Thiffault contributed greatly to the success of Operation APPOLLO – Canada’s military component to the US-led coalition campaign against terrorism in the South-West Asia Theatre of Operation. The Canadian Joint Task Force he served as initial commander numbered over 2,500 members, the largest operational deployment of Canadian Forces since the Korean War. Commodore Thiffault’s personal interventions with the Coalition’s senior military leadership secured Canadian units’ frontline roles on land, in the air and at sea which they executed to the acclaim of Canadians and Coalition partners alike. Throughout his time in command, Commodore Thiffault set a sterling example of dedication to duty, diligence and concern for the welfare of all members of the task force bringing considerable benefit and honour to Canada and the Canadian Forces.”</td>

STOGAN, Patrick Benton
Lieutenant-Colonel PPCLI
Command 3 PPCLI Battle Group in Afghanistan

MSC CD
CG: 26 April 2003
GH: 12 March 2003
DOI: 08 January to 30 July 2002

“From January 8 to July 30, 2002, LCol Stogran commanded the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia’s Canadian Light Infantry Battle Group in Afghanistan – the regiment which spearheaded Canada’s contribution to the international campaign against terrorism. In this, Canada’s first deployment of an army unit in combat operations against a declared enemy in five decades, LCol Stogran has proved to be an excellent tactician, a determined negotiator and a tireless and inspiring leader under complex operational conditions. His truly outstanding professionalism on Operation OPOLLO has brought great credit to Canada and to the Canadian Forces.”

Awarded Mentioned-in Despatches (MID) as per Canada Gazette of 10 February 1996 in the rank of Major for UNPROFOR...

Awarded American Bronze Star as per Canada Gazette of 08 November 2003 in the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

CITATIONS to the MERITORIOUS SERVICE CROSS (Military) (MSC)

COMEAU, Joseph Alain
Chief Warrant Officer – RSM 3 Battalion
Operation APOLLO – Afghanistan

MSC CD
CG: 18 October 2003
GH: 29 August 2003
DOI: February to August 2002

“CWO Comeau was the Regimental Sergeant-Major of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia’s Canadian Light Infantry Battle Group deployed in Afghanistan during Operation APOLLO from February to August 2002. As the Commanding Officer’s closest adviser, responsible for the welfare, training readiness and discipline of the soldiers within the Battle Group, CWO Comeau’s performance was exemplary. In the aftermath of the Tarnak Farm incident, CWO Comeau was a pillar of strength under the most demanding of circumstances, projecting a sense of compassion and professional resolve that led directly to re-establishing cohesion and mission focus among all ranks of the Battle Group. CWO Comeau’s outstanding professionalism has brought great credit to the Canadian Forces and to Canada.”

Bronze Star (USA) awarded as per Canada Gazette of 08 November 2003 for services in Afghanistan in 2002 in the rank of Chief Warrant Officer.

LERHE, Eric James
Commodore Gulf of Oman Sector Commander
Operation ENDURING FREEDOM

OMM MSC CD
CG: 18 October 2003
GH: 29 August 2003
DOI: April to September 2002

“As the Gulf of Oman Sector Commander from April to September 2002, during Operation ENDURING FREEDOM, Commodore Lerhe led the terrorist leadership interdiction effort at sea. His unparalleled tactical and technical expertise, single-minded tenacity and patience were critical to the effective command of up to nine ships from eight nations with substantially different rules of engagement, communication, information systems and national mandates. His exceptional leadership led directly to the apprehension of four terrorist suspects at sea and prevented senior operatives of the Taliban and al-Qaeda from using the high seas as an escape route. His actions have brought great credit to the Canadian Forces and to Canada.”

Officer of the Order of Military Merit (OMM) awarded as per Canada Gazette of 20 June 1998 in the rank of Captain(N).

Medals: OMM – MSC – SWA with bar Afghanistan – SSM with bar NATO – CD with 2 bars
