MERITORIOUS SERVICE MEDAL (MSM)

The Meritorious Service Medal was instituted in 1991 with a military and civil division.

The military MSM is awarded for the performance of a military deed or a military activity in a highly professional manner of a very high standard that it brings benefit to, or honour to the Canadian Forces. It can be awarded to all ranks and may be awarded posthumously. The civil MSM is awarded for the performance of a deed or activity in a highly professional manner of a very high standard that brings benefit or honour to Canada.

The Medal is a silver medal, circular in shape and ensigned with the Royal Crown. On the obverse is the design of the cross. On the reverse are the Royal Cypher and within a double circle the words "MERITORIOUS SERVICE MERITOIRE". A plain silver bar with a maple leaf in the centre is awarded for subsequent awards of the medal. The Ribbon (military) is bright blue with two 6mm wide white stripes, having a blue stripe 1mm wide in its centre, centred on the outer third of each side of the ribbon. The civil MSM ribbon has a 1mm central white stripe but otherwise is similar to the military MSM ribbon.

The MSM is worn after the Medal of Bravery.

BAMBOUKIAN, Albert
Teacher - Kuwait
Gulf War

MSM
Calgary, Alberta

CG: 18 April 1992
DOI: 02 August 1990 - 03 March 1991

"At the time of Iraq's invasion, Mr. Bamboukian was teaching in Kuwait. During the period following the invasion, he offered daily assistance to the Canadian Embassy in Kuwait. He facilitated the issuance of more than six hundred immigrant visas for the individuals hoping to leave the country. After the Canadian Embassy was surrounded, he surreptitiously provided help to the Embassy. He also helped to contact those foreign nationals who were in hiding and, on the day of the Canadian evacuation flight, helped transport to the airport the spouses and children of Canadian and foreign nationals in hiding."

MOCKRIDGE, Britton Osler
Canadian Businessman - Kuwait
Gulf War

MSM

CG: 18 April 1992
DOI: 02 August 1990 to 03 March 1991

"Mr. Mockridge, a Canadian businessman, played a significant part in the events following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. He worked hard to help the Canadian warden group achieve success. He assisted during the American evacuation flights and participated in the distribution of food, money and medical aid. Whenever assistance was required, he displayed courage and a ready willingness to help others."

Mr. Britton Osler Mockridge, MSM

A lawyer in Calgary, he Britton received his education at Trinity College School, Princeton University and the University of Toronto Law School. He has been called to the Bar in Ontario and Alberta. He worked in Toronto for Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt and with INCO before moving to Calgary and working with Mobil Oil Canada, Suncor and Husky. He moved to Kuwait and worked for the Kuwait Foreign Petroleum Exploration Company (KSC) arriving six weeks before Iraqi invasion where he became a "guest" of the Iraqi forces for four and a half months where as a Canadian Warden he cared for western ex-pats especially those nationalities which were taken as "human shields". He along with other Canadian Wardens ran a clandestine mail service by smuggling mail out with evacuation flights for women and children. They also arranged to supply food and services to house bound ex-pats including dental services, special needs such as medicines and even cash supplied by the Kuwaiti Government in exile. For his efforts during the Iraqi occupation he was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal by Canada. After 13 years in the Middle East he and his wife Judi, who joined him in Kuwait after liberation, returned to Calgary where he currently practices law mainly international oil and gas transactions. He is an Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel in the Fraser Highlanders and has been a director of a number of junior oil and gas companies. He is Vice-Chancellor of the Order of St. Lazarus in Calgary and a KLJ and OMLJ in the Order of St. Lazarus.

WAUGH, Sharon Canadian Embassy Staff - Kuwait	MSM

"Following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, four employees of the Canadian Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. Friebel and Mr. and Mrs. Waugh, helped ensure the continued operation of the Canadian Embassy in Kuwait. Working around the clock, inside and outside the mission, they helped Canadians and foreign nationals to endure difficult conditions. Their courageous and dedicated efforts enabled many to leave the country safely in the early months of the crisis. Placing the concerns of the Canadian community ahead of their own, they offered their own homes to anyone requiring aid. Despite the extreme conditions already experienced, they volunteered to remain behind Iraq's evacuation deadline."

GHERSON, Randolph
Canadian Ambassador for Fisheries Conservation

MSM
Chelsea, Quebec

CG: 30 July 1994
DOI: 1992

"Mr. Gherson, Canada's Ambassador for Fisheries Conservation, successfully negotiated a Canada-European Community fisheries agreement, overcoming considerable scepticism from all parties, following the 1992 northern cod moratorium. He also upheld Canadian interests in the Food and Agriculture Organization agreement on fishing vessel activity in the Northwest Atlantic. Mr. Gherson's help in preparing the Canadian delegation and chairing intersession meetings has increased the prospects of success of the United Nations Conference on regulating the fishing of various stocks on the high seas."

He died at the Ottawa Hospital on 28 June 2014 with his wife of 64 years, Joan (Slater), and daughter Diane and son Giles were at his bedside. Born in Cairo, Egypt, in 1928, Randolph earned degrees in international relations at the London School of Economics and international law at the Academy of International Law in The Hague. He worked as the International Wheat Board economist in London and Rome before emigrating to Canada with Winnipeg-born Joan and their two children in 1958 to join the federal Department of Trade and Commerce. In a distinguished career capped by the Governor General's Medal for Meritorious Service to Canada, he was appointed as Canada's deputy and acting head of mission to the European Economic Community in Brussels (1968), economic minister-counsellor in Washington (1972), ambassador to the OECD in Paris (1980), Canada's chief air negotiator (1986) and Ambassador for Fisheries Conservation (1991). Known for his keen intellect, unwavering integrity, warm sense of humour and ever-present charm, Randolph lived his life deliberately, richly and well.

HUIJBERS, Henk
The Reverend Father

MSM
Mayo, Alaska

CG: 30 July 1994
DOI: Over 40 Years

"Father Huijbers has worked for more than forty years as a missionary among the first peoples of the Yukon. He has continued his ministry through minus forty degrees temperatures, heavy snow, non-existent roads and travel by dogsled. At the age of sixty-five, he rebuilt a dilapidated church in Mayo with help from local volunteers and financial aid from the Netherlands, his native country."

Father Henk Huijbers was born on June 8, 1916 in Limburg, Holland. He studied at the Fathers of St. Montfort Monastery in Belgium and then entered the order of the Oblates Mary Immaculate of the Catholic Church. He took his first religious vows in 1937. When World War II broke out, Father Huijbers was studying philosophy in Velaines, located on the French border. In 1941, the students were thrown out of the Oblate Monastery by the Gestapo and were forced to continue their studies in secret in an old attic. Father Huijbers had also studied architecture and became known as the 'builder priest' early in his career. In the attic room, he created individual cells for the forty-four monks by sewing old grain bags into curtains and building the night tables from plywood. The students eventually fled to Dunkirk where Father Huijbers volunteered as an ambulance driver with the Red Cross, returning evacuees to their homes in Belgium and Holland from the French coast. He became involved with the Dutch Resistance after he successfully evacuated two injured Allied pilots who were shot down over Holland. He became chaplain for the Dutch Resistance, known as the L.O.K.P, and the Belgium Resistance, known as the White Brigade, where he served the wounded, people in hiding from the German war camps, and other members of the underground. Father Huijbers was ordained to the priesthood on July 26, 1943 and celebrated his first mass in the secrecy of his parents' barn. In the same year, he was arrested by the Gestapo, on suspicion of his involvement with the underground. He escaped the concentration camp the same night he was captured with the help of the Resistance and assumed new identities in Holland, France and Belgium. From 1944 to 1947, he was chaplain for the Dutch troops affiliated with the 29th U.S. Infantry Division in Germany. He survived the Battle of the Bulge and returned to Holland to continue his work in the Oblates Mary Immaculate order. In 1947, Father Huijbers arrived in North Battleford, Saskatchewan to fill a temporary position for another priest. He traveled to Mayo in 1948 to assist Bishop Jean-Louis Coudert for one year and remained in the Yukon where he became involved in building recreation halls, community clubs, churches, a rectory, and a museum. Except for a five-year period in Cassiar, Father Huijbers spent most of his time in the Mayo-Elsa area. By the 1970s, Father Huijbers was travelling weekly to Haines Junction, Destruction Bay, Beaver Creek, and Burwash Landing where he coordinated various community building projects. In Burwash Landing, he initiated a project to supply electrical power and worked with the Kluane First Nation to fund and design a museum. He built St. Henry's Church in Elsa and constructed another church in the now vacant community of Calumet. As a result of his work with the Dutch underground during the war, Father Huijbers was awarded the Silver Resistance Remembrance Cross by the Dutch Consul General in Vancouver in 1982. His commitment to the Yukon and its people was recognized by the Commissioner's Certificate of Merit in 1986, and the Yukon Historical and Museum's Association Lifetime Achievement Award in 1998. In his later years, Father Huijbers lived in Whitehorse at the Oblate Centre, a seniors' retirement home that he helped build. Father Huijbers died in Whitehorse on July 5, 2002

Under his capable leadership, Habitat for Humanity Canada has mobilized the energy of thousands of volunteers across the country to work in partnership with needy families in Canada and 42 other countries. Through their labour, they have rehabilitated poor housing in many communities and helped countless families build their own homes."

Mr. George Frederick Anderson, MSM
 27 March 1924 to 26 June 2009

Born on 27 March 2914, he passed away in Innisfil, Ontario on 26 June 2009. Dearly beloved husband of Doris (Greer) for 65 years they had 6 children Lynne Welch (Gary), Neil (Roberta), Brian (Elaine), Kathy Ferguson (Bill), Paul (Debra) and Mark (Carol), 17 grandchildren and 18 great- grandchildren. Following his RCAF military service, George owned and operated a trucking firm, 'Anderson's Express'. A man of great faith, George was always dedicated and involved with his church. In the 1970's and he was called to become Lay Pastor of Emmanuel United Church in Aurora, Ontario and later Executive Director of Faith At Work Canada. Later, an invitation to build homes for the poor in Haiti changed the direction of George's life. His passion for helping people and making a difference led him to travel across Canada communicating the message, 'A hand up, not a hand out' and subsequently founding Habitat for Humanity Canada, for which he received the Governor General's Meritorious Service Medal. George was a gifted motivator and raised funds for many organizations over the years. An eternal optimist, encourager and storyteller.

Medals: CM – MSM and Bar – Canada 125 - Order of Friendship of Nations Government of USSR - Canada 125 - Order of Friendship of Nations Government of Russia

Mr. Richard Weber, CM, MSM and Bar

In 1987, along with teammate Brent Boddy, became the first Canadian to reach the North Pole on foot.

In 1988, became the first person to reach the North Pole from both sides of the Arctic Ocean.

In 1989, became the first person to accurately stand at the Geographic North Pole (first GPS to register "90" north).

In 1992, with companion Dr. Mikhail (Misha) Malakhov, became the first attempt to reach the North Pole with no outside help.

In 1995, Richard and Misha's expedition became the first unsupported expedition to reach the North Pole and return to land. The achievement has not yet been repeated.

In 2006, with Conrad Dickinson, became the first to trek to the North Pole using snowshoes exclusively.

In 2009, he completed an on-foot trek from Hercules Inlet on the Ronne Ice Shelf to the South Pole in a record time of 33 days, 23 hours and 30 minutes.[1] He was accompanied by fellow Canadians Ray Zahab and Kevin Vallely.

In 2010, he organized and completed an on-foot trek from northern Canada to the North Pole with his son Tessum Weber, and two fellow adventurers, setting the fastest time to the North Pole (42 days, 18 hours 52 minutes for the 900 km trek).

During the perilous times of the Rwanda war, he provided emergency relief assistance throughout the exodus of over a million refugees from Rwanda to Tanzania. Mr. Hazleton then returned to Zaire where he organized CARE Canada's response to the refugee plight in Goma and Bukavu, overseeing the building of camps and negotiating with the local Zairean authorities to obtain basic security and services for the refugees."

Ralph Hazleton (1938-2008)

Ralph Hazleton, who died on 30 December 2008, had an engaging and varied association with World University Service of Canada (WUSC). An economist, Ralph worked as a World University Service of Canada (WUSC) volunteer from 1980-82, serving as Head of Department of Business Studies and Senior Lecturer in Economics at Ramat Polytechnic in Maiduguri, Nigeria. Subsequently, he returned to Prince Edward Island and served as a member of the WUSC Board of Directors and started the WUSC Local Committee on University of Prince Edward Island (UPEI) campus.

In the mid-80s he joined the WUSC staff as Country Director in Botswana and Lesotho. Upon his return he worked briefly with the Eastern Caribbean Economic Management Programme before settling in to the Indonesia Program. He moved to CARE Canada in 1993 and in 1997 he received a Meritorious Service Medal in recognition of his work in the Rwandan refugee camps in Zaire. "Ralph Hazleton was someone who inspired more than one generation of students at U.P.E.I. to help change the world. His leave from UPEI to work for WUSC in Africa inspired his lifelong passion for Africa where he ultimately accomplished so much humanitarian work. Before he left UPEI, he left a legacy in founding the Student Refugee Program on campus in which so many UPEI students participated."

"On July 13, 1992, Firefighter James displayed great perseverance and outstanding professionalism when he entered a burning building in Calgary, Alberta, in search of possible victims. Taking the lead, Firefighter James doused the flames until he reached the end of the hose line. He then continued farther until he found an interior hose line, managed to hook it up, and continued battling the flames. When his air supply became critically low, Firefighter James attempted to exit the building. In zero visibility, he became disoriented, was overcome by the heat and smoke and collapsed. Tragically, Firefighter James did not survive."

SHANNON, Gerald E.

Mr.

Ambassador on Tariffs and Trade

MSM

Ottawa, Ontario

CG: 29 August 1998

GH: 12 August 1998

DOI: 1994

"Former Ambassador and Permanent Representative of Canada to the Secretariat of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, Gerald Shannon was Chief Negotiator for Canada to the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations in 1994. His extraordinary negotiation skills led to significant improvements in the regulations governing international trade as well as increased market access for agriculture and industrial goods and services. Under Mr. Shannon's leadership, Canada was a major influence in the Uruguay Round and was recognized, along with the European Union, as the creator of the World Trade Organization and the integrated dispute settlement system. Mr. Shannon made an indelible mark on a most significant episode of Canadian history."

Gerald E. Shannon, MSM

1935 to 2003

Gerry Shannon could have been a professional hockey player like his father, but sought instead to play in a much bigger arena. Shannon went on to become a top career public servant who helped formulate Ottawa's policies on international trade. At one time he held the No. 2 posting in the Canadian Embassy in Washington and was a key negotiator in the talks known as the Uruguay Round, which led to the formation of the World Trade Organization in 1995.

Shannon, who died recently in Vancouver at age 67, is being remembered as a fair, tough and passionate trade policy analyst who was a trusted advisor to ministers in the successive cabinets of Pierre Trudeau and Brian Mulroney in the '80s.

"Gerry was a larger than life character," said Peter Sutherland, a former director-general of the WTO. "He played a crucial role in the conclusion of the Uruguay Round. He had a belief in the multilateral system that he combined with an intense Canadian patriotism. His personality was also a factor in bringing peaceful resolution to difficult negotiations."

"He was a straightforward guy — you always knew where you stood with him," said Marc Lalonde, a former Liberal finance minister. "He was a man with a very solid judgement. He was a good team player in that regard, the kind of guy you would want to have as a senior public servant."

Born in Ottawa in 1935, Shannon received an early lesson from his father — hockey player Jerry Shannon, who played for the Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins and other NHL teams — on the necessity of appearing strong, no matter what. Once, after a puck knocked out the boy's two front teeth, his father shouted, "Get up, son, shake it off!" Young Gerry did so and stayed in the game. The same spirit of toughness also probably helped him cope with the death of his mother when he was ten.

Despite an offer to try out for the Bruins, Shannon took his father's advice and went to university. Graduating from Carleton University's school of journalism, he worked as a reporter for the Sudbury Star for several years before lifting his sights again. He wrote a foreign-service exam and was accepted as a diplomat in 1963. "He realized that being a small-town reporter was great and he enjoyed it, but he wanted to be involved in the big world," said his wife, Anne Park Shannon.

His first posting was in Washington where, despite any formal training as an economist, he handled matters of trade and economic policy. "He was good at pursuing Canadian interests with the Americans, they liked him," Ms. Park Shannon said. "He was very affable and very good at just getting to the essence of things." He also served as Canada's senior foreign affairs representative in Belgrade in the former Yugoslavia, and later as ambassador to Korea, one of Canada's youngest at the time.

In the mid-'70s, at the height of the Trudeau era, he became director of commercial policy for the then-department of external affairs. After several years he returned to Washington as the Embassy's second-in-command at a time when Canada's national energy program generated heated discussions.

Recalled to Ottawa about 1982, he became the assistant deputy minister of finance for the Liberals, then deputy minister of international trade for the Progressive Conservatives — in which capacities he advised Lalonde and later PC ministers Michael Wilson and Barbara McDougall.

Gerald E. Shannon, MSM

Known for his enthusiasm and for being indefatigable on the job, Shannon performed an astonishing array of official duties while in Geneva between 1989 and 1995. As Canada's chief negotiator for the Uruguay Round, he developed a binding dispute settlement system that was hailed as a major breakthrough. He was Canada's first ambassador to the WTO as he had been to its predecessor, the GATT, the general agreement on tariffs and trade. As an occasional ambassador to the UN, he contributed the so-called "Shannon mandate" to its committee on disarmament; it is a significant negotiating protocol, still in use today.

Soon after leaving government in 1995 to work as an international trade policy consultant, he penned an article for the Globe and Mail on Canada's protracted and seemingly never-ending softwood lumber dispute with the United States. "We always get roughed up in dealing alone with the Americans on issues they deem to be critical to them," he observed. "They simply have too many guns and they persevere until they win."

Shannon enjoyed hiking, gardening, opera, traveling, dogs, crossword puzzles and playing hockey. He and his wife moved from Ottawa to Victoria about a year ago with the intent of retiring there. He was sick only a few weeks before he died on 26 April 2005. He leaves his wife, Anne Park Shannon, and sons Michael and Steven from a previous marriage and his sister, Carol Schwarz, of Ottawa.

"In 1999, S/Sgt Hudon, then Sergeant, was working with the Haiti Bilateral Project, and Cpl Hachi with the United Nations Civilian Police Mission in Haiti. On March 15, they were dispatched to the site of a UN helicopter crash on a remote mountain top near Dos d'Orange. Undeterred by rain, high winds, fog, and nightly temperatures of three to five degrees Celsius, these two identification specialists persevered for three days with little protection from the elements to complete their difficult forensic task. With air transportation no longer possible, they then walked 11 hours through dangerous mountainous terrain to reach the nearest town, where ground transportation awaited them. Cpl Hachi and S/Sgt Hudon exhibited professionalism and leadership skills that have established the RCMP as a key element in international peacekeeping."

"On May 19, 1995, Cpl Lemieux, a member of the United Nations Civilian Police Mission (UNCIVPOL), responded, along with other RCMP members, to a complaint that three murderers from a Haitian organized gang were planning to cause trouble in Les Cayes, Haiti. One man was quickly taken into custody but the other two fled with Cpl Lemieux in pursuit. Although he was shot at twice during the hour-long foot chase in extreme heat, Cpl Lemieux managed to capture one of the suspects and then prevented a mob of angry people from attacking him. Displaying great determination and professionalism, Cpl Lemieux maintained control of the volatile situation and led the criminal unharmed to the transportation vehicle while his colleagues apprehended the third fugitive. Cpl Lemieux's actions resulted in a successful arrest without loss of life and has brought great credit to himself and to Canada."

"An ornithological and aviation breakthrough was achieved in 1988 when Mr. Lishman became the first human in history to fly a plane in formation with a flock of birds. Out of this event grew the concept that the techniques could be further developed to establish safe migratory routes for specific threatened or endangered species of waterfowl around the world. The success of the experiment with Canada geese led to the incorporation of Operation Migration as a registered charity in 1994. Mr. Lishman's story, Father Goose, published in both an adults' and children's version, has helped to create public awareness of Canadian wildlife issues.

"From April 1993 to October 1996, Sgt Marion took a leading role in a drug investigation known as Project Overtrick. During the investigation, Sgt Marion established contact with the suspects without the aid of an informant, a risky method that almost shut down the investigation. However, thanks to Sgt Marion's tenacity and persuasive arguments, Project Overtrick continued to fruition resulting in the arrest of seven suspects in two countries and the seizure of 75 kilograms of heroin, the largest seizure of the drug in Canadian history. The successful conclusion of this investigation would not have been possible without Sgt Marion's dedication, commitment and perseverance. His contribution has helped to curtail the flow of drugs into Canadian and foreign societies."

WILKES, George Clarkson

Mr

Canadian Tribute to Human Rights Monument

MSM

Hull, Quebec

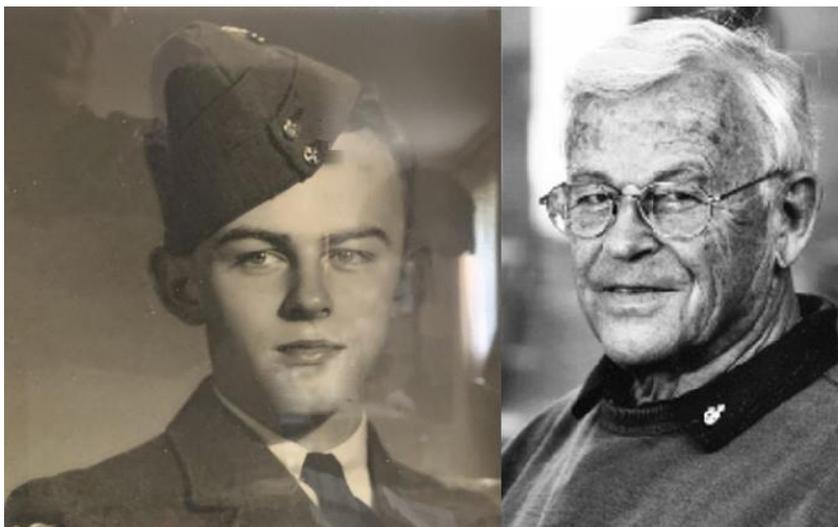

CG: 02 September 2000

GH: 16 August 2000

DOI: 1984 to Sept 1990

"George Wilkes has contributed to human rights awareness and education on a national scale. In 1984, he co-founded the Canadian Tribute to Human Rights Inc., a community-based, non-profit organization dedicated to maintaining and fostering awareness of the personal freedom, respect, and dignity of each individual. Leading a group of Canadian volunteers, he was the driving force behind the world's first Canadian Tribute to Human Rights Monument, which was unveiled in September 1990 in Ottawa. Mr. Wilkes continues to ensure that the monument remains a reminder of universal human rights issues, which touch us all."

George Clarkson Wilkes dedicated his life to improving his community. This Second World War veteran and career public servant championed human rights, health care, the environment, heritage protection and many other causes during his long life as an activist. Indeed, you can't walk far in the National Capital Region without bumping into one of George's projects, the most visible being the Canadian Tribute to Human Rights on Elgin Street in front of Ottawa City Hall. That monument, like many of George's endeavours, was fueled by his impressive tenacity, generosity and daring. George died July 3, 2020 at age 98 at Hull Hospital. George was born April 20, 1922 in Oakville, Ont. During the Second World War, he signed up with the Royal Canadian Air Force and was seconded to the Royal Air Force in England, serving as a radar technician. Back home, he earned a Masters of Forest Economics at the University of Toronto and, from 1945-72, was a federal public servant, first in Forestry and later in Justice in the anti-trust division. In 1950, George met Norman Dahl, his partner and husband for 70 years. They spent much of their life in Ottawa's Sandy Hill neighbourhood, later moving to Hull, and enjoying summers at the Gatineau River cottage in Chelsea they built in the 1950s. They frequently holidayed in Mexico and Guatemala, where they became fascinated with ancient Mayan culture. They were also both active volunteers at Bruce House, Ottawa's AIDS hospice. For many years, George was deeply involved in Sandy Hill politics, serving as the founding president of Action Sandy Hill, an organization championing housing, health care, environmental and heritage issues. George's activism resulted in the founding of the Sandy Hill Health Centre in 1973. He sponsored eight children overseas under Foster Parents Plan Canada and co-sponsored a Vietnamese family of five, during the project to help the Boat People in the 1980s. In 1990, the visiting Dalai Lama officially unveiled the Canadian Tribute to Human Rights, a project George spearheaded for many years. George's community activism and voluntarism earned him a sheaf of honours, including the Meritorious Service Medal presented in 2000 by the then Governor General, Adrienne Clarkson, and the 2016 Community Builder Award from the United Way. There is an old saying that, if you want something done, "let George do it." Well, George Wilkes definitely did "it." We are all better off because of him. George is survived by his spouse Norman Dahl and his nieces Carolyn Goldie, Martha Weston, Anna Simmins, their families, many friends and caring neighbours France Petrin, Jacques Desrosiers, John Read, Suzanne Garant and Margo Monnin. Thanks to employees of Retire-at-Home, especially homecare worker Bela.
