Major - PPCLI

GH: 06 February 2007

OC 'C' Company PPCLI Battle Group Joint Task Force Afghanistan

DOI: January to August 2006

“As Officer Commanding ‘C’ Company, Task Force Afghanistan, from January to August 2006, Major Fletcher repeatedly demonstrated extraordinary bravery by exposing himself to intense fire while leading his forces, on foot, to assault heavily defended enemy positions. On two occasions, the soldiers at his side were struck by enemy fire. He immediately rendered first aid and then continued to head the subsequent assaults. On these occasions and in ensuing combat actions, his selfless courage, tactical acumen and effective command were pivotal to the success of his company in defeating a determined opponent.”

Awarded Officer of the Order of Military Merit (OMM) as per the DND list of 12 December 2018 in the rank of Colonel.

“Sergeant Tower is recognized for valiant actions taken on August 3, 2006, in the Pashmul region of Afghanistan. Following an enemy strike against an outlying friendly position that resulted in numerous casualties, Sergeant Tower assembled the platoon medic and a third soldier and led them across 150 m of open terrain, under heavy enemy fire, to render assistance. On learning that the acting platoon commander had perished, Sergeant Tower assumed command and led the successful extraction of the force under continuous small arms and rocket-propelled grenade fire. Sergeant Tower’s courage and selfless devotion to duty contributed directly to the survival of the remaining platoon members.”

“On 14 October 2006, Private Larochelle of the 1st Royal Canadian Regiment Battle Group was manning an observation post when it was destroyed by enemy rocket in Pashmul, Afghanistan. Although he was alone, severely injured, and under sustained enemy fire in his exposed position at the ruined observation post, he aggressively provided covering fire over the otherwise undefended flank of his company’s position. While two members of the personnel were killed and three others were wounded in the initial attack, Private Larochelle’s heroic actions permitted the remainder of the company to defend their battle positions and to successfully fend off the sustained attack of more than 20 insurgents. His valiant conduct saved the lives of many members of his company.”

Medals: Star of Military Valour – General Campaign Star with SWA ribbon

He died at his home on Command Lake on 30 August 2023 at the age of 40.

There have been repeated attempts to get this medal upgraded to the Victoria Cross.

“On 03 September 2006, during Operation MEDUSA, the light utility vehicle driven by Corporal Teal, a member of 7 Platoon Charles Company, was hit and destroyed by enemy rocket-propelled grenade fire. Despite being wounded, Corporal Teal assessed the situation and under heavy enemy fire, moved to report the situation and bring assistance. He then returned twice to the vehicle to provide treatment to his severely wounded comrades, including the platoon medic, and to evacuate all personnel injured or killed. His brave and professional actions saved lives and allowed the orderly withdrawal of his platoon under heavy fire.”

Lieutenant-Colonel David Nelson QUICK, SMV, CD
Commanding Officer, 3rd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment

Lieutenant-Colonel David N. Quick was born at Trenton, Ontario on 11 February 1974. He considers Ottawa, Burnstown and Trenton, Ontario as his home towns. He enrolled in the Canadian Armed Forces on 10 January 1994. After completion of training he commissioned into The Royal Canadian Regiment, serving initially with 1 RCR at Petawawa from 11 August 1995 to 15 July 2000. While with 1 RCR Lieutenant-Colonel Quick commanded first a rifle platoon in Bravo Company and then Recce Platoon in Echo Company. He was also 2-i-C of Echo (Combat Support) Company. During his tour with 1 RCR, Lieutenant-Colonel Quick was twice deployed on overseas operational missions, to Bosnia in 1998 and then to Kosovo from 1999 to 2000. Posted to Toronto, he served as a staff officer at LFCA HQ from 15 July 2000 to 05 August 2002. He was then selected for the Army Officer Degree Program and attended the University of Toronto from August 2002 to June 2003. He subsequently graduated with a Bachelor of Military Arts and Sciences degree granted RMC.

He was posted to Gagetown, New Brunswick and taken on strength with 2 RCR on 16 June 2003. While with 2 RCR he served as Assistant Ops Officer, OC Combat Support Company, and OC India Company. Lieutenant-Colonel Quick completed two additional operational tours while with 2 RCR. He was in Haiti with the Multinational Interim Force from March to August 2004. Then Lieutenant-Colonel Quick served in Kandahar Province, Afghanistan, seeing action as a rifle company commander from January to August 2007. He was wounded in action. He will arguably be best remembered in the Regiment for his dynamic leadership, innovative tactics, and heroic actions while a combat leader in Afghanistan. Two months into the tour Lieutenant-Colonel Quick suffered severe injuries to his neck and back when the Light Armoured Vehicle (LAV) he was travelling in was caught in the blast of a detonated Taliban IED. Despite these serious wounds he continued to command India Company for the remaining five months of the tour. Though carrying the fight to the enemy and inflicting several reverses on the Taliban of Zharey District, not a single man in India Company was lost. His inspirational leadership and personal gallantry resulted in the award of the Star of Military Valour.

Lieutenant-Colonel Quick served as the Commanding Officer of 3rd Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, from 14 June 2011 to 06 June 2013. He was then seconded to Veterans Affairs Canada (VAC) as the Manager of Domestic Operations — Commemorative Division until his retirement.

Lieutenant-Colonel David Nelson Quick, SMV, CD retired from the Canadian Army as of 12 January 2014. This retirement is unfortunately the result of wounds suffered on the field of battle in Afghanistan.

“Corporals Baker, Ball and Bancarz, and Captains Peel and Snyder were deployed to Afghanistan to serve as mentors to an Afghan company, when they were ambushed by Taliban insurgents on 04 June 2008. With little chance of survival, they exposed themselves to great peril and retaliated against the enemy while encouraging the Afghan soldiers to do the same. Captain Snyder seized control of the situation and ensured that the Afghan soldiers retrieved their wounded comrades. Corporal Ball led a two-man team across broken terrain to secure an extraction route that allowed for the execution of a fighting withdrawal by Captain Peel and corporals Bancarz and Baker. Because of their dedication, leadership and valour, many Afghan and Canadian lives were saved.”

Corporal Cary Baker, Corporal Steven Bancarz and Captain Robert Peel received the Medal of Military Valour (MMV) as per Canada Gazette of 29 November 2008.

Three days later, 07 June 2008, Captain Jonathan Snyder stepped into an open well on a night patrol and fell to his death.

Captain Jonathan Snyder, SMV, PPCLI

Canadian Jon Snyder helped save 50 Afghan recruits from the Taliban. Three days later, he died.

Bullets pelted the low mud wall above Capt. Jonathan Snyder's head, showering him and the Afghan troops around him in dust. Taliban machine guns rattled in the distance, spraying the other side of the wall with lead.

"Tell them to shoot back!" Jon yelled to the Afghan National Army (ANA) commander next to him. The man just stared back, frozen in the face of his first major battle. His 55 ANA troops were lined up along the low mud wall, waiting for orders in what was their first combat mission under the Canadians' guidance.

They weren't supposed to be ducking bullets in a stinking ditch between two farmer's fields, waiting for the Taliban to surround them and gun them all down. They were supposed to be learning how to march. Jon pressed his back against the wall and listened for a break in the Taliban gunfire.

He jumped up at the first break in fire and started shooting back, peppering one of the Taliban-held compounds across the field with bullets. He dropped to his belly a second later, just as gunfire cut the air where he'd been standing. Jon's team of four Canadian soldiers followed his lead, peeking over the wall to fire a few shots, then ducking and moving a few steps along the wall before firing again. "Fight back!" Jon urged the ANA troops once more. They didn't understand his words, but they got the message. They started shooting back, two and three at a time, jumping up and firing wildly before ducking back behind the metre-high wall.

The Taliban gunfire eased off, and suddenly the Canadians and the Afghans felt like they had a chance. Months later, Jon and his Canadian troops would be honoured at Rideau Hall for showing the Afghans how to fight off the Taliban and escape the ambush, while making sure that no one was left behind.

Cpl. Donovan Ball and Capt. Snyder were awarded the Star of Military Valour — the highest honour handed out during the Afghan War. Ball risked enemy fire to keep their escape route open, while Snyder coached the Afghan commander through a nearly unwinnable situation.

But Jon wasn't there to receive his medal. The 26-year-old died three nights after the ambush, when he fell into an unmarked well during a night patrol in southeastern Afghanistan.

Three days later, Jon and several other soldiers were on a foot patrol after dark, with only a thin crescent of moon to light their way.

They were navigating through a grape field with the help of their night vision cameras, which cover one eye and depict the world in green light and shadow. Night vision cameras amplify light but they also mess with your depth perception, making it hard to see your feet or avoid small obstacles on the ground. It was particularly dark that night, and the field was filled with shadows.

Snyder never saw the shadow that would kill him — an unmarked, open well called a kariz, which farmers use to irrigate their fields. Most of these wells are uncovered holes big enough to drop a bucket into — nothing at all like a standard water well.

Jon fell into the kariz and plummeted more than 20 metres to the bottom, into an underground reservoir, sometime after 9 p.m. that night. The soldiers above ground tried to get him out, but the hole was too deep and the ground around it was too soft. Baker says Jon kicked off his heavy boots and tried to shrug off the nearly 45 kilograms of gear that threatened to drag him down. "He fought for four or five hours," Baker said. "He fought the whole time." These are the actions of men deserving of the Victoria Cross, saving 50 Afghan Allies lives should be recognized as an incredible feat of bravery.

Master Warrant Officer Richard Stacey, SMV, CD

Stacey has been a member of the Canadian Forces since 1983. He joined the Strathconas, serving with them in Bosnia, Kosovo and Haiti. Stacey was on his second tour in Afghanistan in 2009. As the sergeant-major of “C” Squadron, it was his job to manage casualties and resupply troops and vehicles. The squadron saw a lot of combat during that summer, notes Major John Cochrane, who was Stacey’s immediate superior at the time, with insurgents launching rocket and suicide-bomb attacks in the lead-up to Afghanistan’s presidential elections.

The squadron was headed back to base along the Arghandab River, Cochrane says — a popular place for ambushes due to its sandy, tire-trapping shores. The distance was a mere 15 kilometres. The convoy had set out at dawn, Stacey says, and travelled in peace for about an hour and a half before the first explosion. As he worked to get the crew out of the crippled tank, enemy forces started firing on them from three directions. “It got progressively worse from there.” Stacey spent the next eight hours zipping up and down the convoy’s 1,800-metre length, treating wounded, fixing vehicles, organizing defences and calling in air strikes from attack helicopters. “There was too much going on.” It was probably the most intense fire-fight of his career, he says. It was hard to get a grip on the number of people attacking them, he says — three or five guys would open fire, slink off, and then resume fire further down the convoy. “This was non-stop for eight hours.” Three Afghan National Army soldiers would die by the end of the day. Stacey says he didn’t think much about the ambush after he finally got back to base — he was too busy planning the next day’s activities.

Stacey’s situation would have been extremely difficult to manage in even the best of times, Cochrane says, and Stacey exceeded all expectations. “He probably was doing the job of at least three men at once,” he says, and saved many lives in the process.

ONE SMV MSC CG: 22 June 2013
No ranks given GH: 07 June 2013
Officer Commanding of the Embedded Partner Team Kandahar Response Team DOI: 07 May 2011 – 08 May 2011

“In a series of bold and coordinated attacks across the rugged Afghan terrain Taliban insurgents attempted to shift their fighting from the countryside to the crowded urban streets of the nation’s major cities, in the spring of 2011. The enemy selected key targets including areas of high tactical value throughout Kandahar City, the provincial capital and focal point of the insurgency.

On May 7, 2011, shots rang out close to an Afghan Police checkpoint just outside the walls of the Kandahar Provincial Response Company (K-PRC) compound. As the attacks in the city grew in intensity, the Afghan government decided to call K-PRC to help quell the surge.

The Kandahar Provincial Response Company (K-PRC) was a well-trained and well-led, limited-notice response force comprised primarily of Afghan police who were trained and mentored by crack soldiers of Canadian Special Forces Operation Command (CANSOFCOM). After brief orders were issued to the force, including their Canadian Special Operations Regiment (CSOR) mentors, they moved to the centre of the city to conduct a reconnaissance on the massive building they were requested to clear by the American Force Commander. What they saw in front of them was a maze of venter stalls and shops littered with rugs and tapestries capable of hiding even the largest enemy opposition force from sight. Over the next 24 hours, the K-PRC would face one of its greatest challenges and stretched its personnel, leadership, and mentors to the brink.

“The conspicuous combat actions of these Special Forces Operators in the battle of Building 4 was borne of hard training and personified an admirable dedication to mission success,” said Lieutenant-Colonel Hank Szelec, commanding officer of CSOR. “Their actions were merely a reflection of the dedication, professionalism and commitment that all men and women of the Canadian Armed Forces demonstrate on a daily basis in defending Canadians, and our country.”

As a result of this event, seven members of the Regiment were awarded the following: two Stars of Military Valour (SMV), one Meritorious Service Cross (MSC), one Medal of Military Valour (MMV), one Mention In Dispatches (MID), and three Chief of the Defence Staff Commendations. Governor General David Johnston and General Tom Lawson, CDS presented the majority of these awards at Rideau Hall on June 7. A CANFORGEN will be released in extension of CANFORGEN 052/13 – Honours Announcement with additional information.

The distinguished leadership, courageous service and self-sacrifice of the above mentioned CSOR members reflect extremely well on CANSOFCOM and the greater CAF community. On behalf of Commander CANSOFCOM, sincere congratulations are extended to all recipients.”

The Officer Commanding of the Embedded Partner Team responsible for mentoring the Kandahar Provincial Response Company was awarded the Star of Military Valour. On May 7/8, 2011, this member bravely led and mentored his team through a close quarter clearance operation of a multi-storied building. Under intense fire and at great personal risk, he valiantly coordinated multiple assaults and successfully neutralized the insurgent threat. This member was also awarded the Meritorious Service Cross for dramatically improving the operational effectiveness of the Kandahar Provincial Response Company, thereby enhancing both the Afghan Rule of Law and the overall legitimacy of the Afghan government.”

DOI: 26 November 2008

“During an operation in Afghanistan on November 26, 2008, Senior Chief Petty Officer Ratzlaff demonstrated extraordinary heroism while reinforcing an assault on a fortified enemy machine gun nest. After multiple attempts to silence the machine gun, he gained entry through a hail of enemy fire. Without hesitation, he deliberately placed himself in harm’s way at point-blank range to neutralize the nest. His heroic actions saved countless lives in the face of a determined enemy.”

In 2017, this citation was declassified and announced in the Honours and Recognition 2017 Canadian Forces Report.

Thomas Ratzlaff was born on November 3, 1976, in Harrison, Arkansas. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy on May 25, 1995, and completed basic training at NTC Great Lakes, Illinois, in July 1995. Ratzlaff next completed gunner’s mate training at NTC Great Lakes from August 1995 to March 1996, and then served aboard the guided-missile destroyer USS Kidd (DDG-993) from April 1996 to March 1998. Petty Officer Ratzlaff attended Basic Underwater Demolition/SEAL training at NAB Coronado, California, from June to December 1998 and then Jump School at Fort Benning, Georgia, in January 1999. He served with SEAL Team TWO at NAB Little Creek, Virginia, from February 1999 to April 2003, followed by service with Naval Special Warfare Development Group (DEVGRU) at Dam Neck, Virginia, from April 2003 until he was killed in action when the CH-47 Chinook helicopter he was aboard was shot down in Afghanistan on 06 August 2011. SCPO Ratzlaff was buried at Arlington National Cemetery. While serving with SEAL Team TWO he deployed to Kosovo in 1999, and while serving with DEVGRU he deployed to Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom multiple times. During this time he also deployed to Iraq in 2007.

His 4th (of 5) Bronze Star Medal w/Valor Citation reads:

For heroic achievement in connection with combat operations against the enemy as a Reconnaissance Team Leader for a Joint Task Force in support of Operation ENDURING FREEDOM from 1 March 2010 to 1 July 2010. During this period, Senior Chief Petty Officer Ratzlaff displayed superior battlefield courage on several direct action missions that resulted in numerous enemy combatants eliminated. On 4 April 2010, he was in charge of a sniper team during a nighttime raid on a heavily armed foreign fighter commander. As the assault force set containment, they were engaged by an armed sentry patrolling in front of the target building. From his position on an adjacent building, Senior Chief Petty Officer Ratzlaff quickly eliminated the enemy sentry while the tactical call-out commended. During this call-out, several heavily armed foreign fighters unleashed a massive volley of fire from inside the targeted building. While under heavy enemy small arms fire, Senior Chief Petty Officer Ratzlaff calmly maintained his position as he returned direct fire at the barricaded enemy until the enemy fire subsided. His decisive actions, under fire, resulted in the elimination of the targeted individual and many heavily armed foreign fighters. By his extraordinary guidance, zealous initiative, and total dedication to duty, Senior Chief Petty Officer Ratzlaff reflected great credit upon himself and upheld the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service.
