=====
 Citation to Lieutenant George Brock Chisholm, MC. 15th Battalion, Canadian Infantry, 1st Central Ontario Regiment for the Bar to the Military Cross:

“During two attacks this officer led his platoon with great courage under very heavy fire, dressing the wounds of some of his men at great risk to himself, and when more than half of his men were casualties he disposed the remainder with great ability, and consolidated his position. He set a brilliant example to his men. (LG 11 January 1919) – First MC 18 October 1917.

=====
15th Battalion (48th Highlanders of Canada)
WWI

One of the main battles Brock fought in was the Battle of the Somme, which lasted from July to November 1916. In a picture of Brock with a group, a small card reads: “after the Somme” (see appendix S), in this battle Brock would have still been a private. The Somme was one of the largest battles of the First World War and was fought in Northern France. The goal was to break through the German line along the River Somme. The allies suffered irreplaceable losses of about 57, 000 casualties. In the Battle of the Somme, Brock was probably working as a machine gunner, as he did in most battles until he started getting promoted. Another battle that the 15th Battalion was deeply involved in was The Battle of St. Julien, otherwise known as The Second Gas Attack. This battle was a one of the battles that made up The Battle of Ypres. At The Battle of St. Julien allied forces were gas - attacked by the Germans. Due to a misunderstanding, the British troops had accidentally mobilized 1 mile too far behind the Canadians, leaving them open to attack. The 15th Battalion was forced back south of the St. Julien village due to enormous losses.

The 15th Battalion also played a large role in the Assault on Hill 70, which occurred on August 15th 1917. Brock went to Hugo Trench with the entire 35th Infantry Brigade, which also included the 13th and 16th Battalions. The 15th Battalion was called upon to send an offensive attack called a “medium trench mortar”. They fired 500 rounds into the northeast end of Bois Hugo and by 6am the 2nd Brigade was able to seize the Red Line. The Assault on Hill 70 was meant to bring German casualties and take German troops away from fighting at the 3rd Battle of Ypres.

At The Battle of Canal du Nord and Bourlon Wood on the 27th of September 1918, Brock was Captain, and his battalion had to secure the town of Marquion. They went through extremely heavy fire to get to the southeast corner. The 15th Battalion was fierce and sent equally heavy fire back at the Germans and with the help of tanks they managed to continue northward mopping up the area east of the Canal du Nord. In Marquion Brock was injured for the first time.

Medical Records: Brock was ever only seriously wounded once during the war at The Battle of Canal du Nord and Bourlon Wood when he was 22 years old. On September 27th 1918 Brock received what was called a “simple flesh wound to the outer left thigh”. Brock was wounded in 28 September 1918 in the town of Marquion by a piece of German shrapnel and was admitted into the Marylebone Hospital in Prince of Wales, London on October 1st, 1918. He was discharged October 23rd, 1918 for transfer to the I.O.D.E Canadian Red Cross hospital in Hyde Park Place, London. He was finally recovered by December 9th, 1918 with a 2 inch long scar, but without having had any operation.

Lest We Forget: On April 9th 1917, Brock was awarded the Military Cross. Brock received this medal at the Second Battle of.

An Oakville newspaper read that when other officers were incapacitated Brock “rallied his men and did good work”. The battalion on Brock’s left side had lost their officers and Brock put his own life on the line to lead them, as well as do his own work in the 15th Battalion. Then, in a rare occurrence, Brock was awarded the bar to the Military Cross on October 9th, 1917 at The Assault on Hill 70. During his time in service Brock earned $10 per month. When he was a Lieutenant and Captain, he earned an extra field allowance of about 60 or 70 cents a month. All Brock’s pay went to his father and into Brock’s account at the Bank of Montreal. Brock earned about $440 total in 44 months of service. By the end of Brock’s service overseas he was 22 years old, stood 5 foot 7 inches tall and weighed 140 lbs. Brock grew an inch and gained 2 lbs in almost four years in the military! In 1916 Brock’s friend Bert said about him, “He has had some close shaves but has come through fine. He is a full corporal in charge of ten machine - gun crews and is certainly doing his bit as well as the bits of a whole lot of them around Oakville”.

Brock returned home to Oakville and went to the University of Toronto to become a doctor. He graduated in the Class of 1924 and entered general practice in Oakville until 1931 with a M.D. in medicine. The same year that Brock graduated from U of T he married Grace McLean Ryrie, who was born in Toronto and had gone to the same school. They married in Oakville, Halton County on June 21st. Then, Brock went on to Yale University to further his studies in something that really interested him: child psychology. He worked at Queen’s Square and Maudsley hospitals in London, Ontario gaining knowledge about children’s mental health. He then returned to Toronto and practiced psychology until 1940. In 1940 Brock enlisted as a Major General for the Second World War. Brock rose through the ranks until he was the Federal Deputy Minister of Health. Brock came home to Toronto again, surviving his second war and in 1946 he was elected to be the executive secretary of the World Health Organization interim committee. Then, in 1956 he became the first ever director –general of the WHO, an important organization today in the world health scene. George Brock raised two children in his lifetime: Catherine Anne and Brock Ryrie. Brock was an extraordinary well - respected man and was one of the first people in Canada to advocate against the rising global population. Brock was known as Canada’s ‘famous angry man’ and was given the Order of Canada in 1967 and was named the Humanist of the Year in 1959. These were both awarded to him because of his strong stand on child rights and he preached that children must not follow their parents and take on their bad habits. Brock’s final publication before his death in 1971 was a book called “Can People Learn?”

On February 4 1971 George Brock Chisholm died of a stroke at the Veteran’s Hospital in Victoria, British Columbia.

CBE Citation

This officer has served continuously since 1911 when he joined the Non-Permanent Active Militia as a Lieutenant with the 1st Hussars. He served throughout the last war and remained with the militia during peacetime, rising to be Officer Commanding No.1 District Engineers in 1933. On the outbreak of the present war he was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel in command of his old regiment, the 1st Hussars. He retained command when his unit was absorbed in 1 Canadian Cavalry regiment (Mechanized) and in April 1941 was appointed Brigadier Commanding 2 Armoured Brigade. He was made Commandant Camp Borden in April 1942 and recently was appointed Brigadier in charge of administration at the camp. This officer has made a noteworthy contribution in the development and administration of this large camp and particularly in training of Armoured Corps personnel. His services in all regards have been outstanding and he is worthy of high recognition.

MEDALS and HONOURS to Brigadier Thomas John RUTHERFORD, CBE, ED

COMMANDER OF THE ORDER OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE

Awarded to Rutherford in the New Year's Honours of 1945. The CBE is the third of five levels of the chivalric order (the first two levels confer knighthood), which was established by King George V in 1917. This was one of only 481 CBEs issued to Canadians, 281 of those for military service. Recipients are permitted to use the initials CBE after their name.

BRITISH WAR MEDAL

Awarded to all ranks of Canadian overseas military forces who came from Canada between Aug. 5, 1914 and Nov. 11, 1918, or who had served in a theatre of war.

VICTORY MEDAL (INTER-ALLIED WAR MEDAL) and MID

Awarded to all ranks of fighting forces who served on the establishment of a unit in a theatre of war between Aug. 5, 1914 and Nov. 11, 1918. The bar, a bronze oak leaf, was awarded to those who were mentioned in dispatches.

FRANCE AND GERMANY STAR

Awarded for one day or more of service in France, Belgium, Holland or Germany between June 6, 1944 and May 8, 1945.

DEFENCE MEDAL

Awarded to Canadians for a specific period of service overseas or outside one's country of residence, usually six months of service in Britain between Sept. 3, 1939 and May 8, 1945.

CANADIAN VOLUNTEER SERVICE MEDAL and CLASP

Awarded to persons of any rank in the naval, military or air forces of Canada who voluntarily served on active service and honourably completed 18 months of voluntary service between Sept. 3, 1939 and March 1, 1947. The bar, a silver clasp, was awarded for 60 days of service outside Canada.

WAR MEDAL (1939-1945)

Awarded to all full-time personnel of the armed forces and merchant marines for serving for 28 days between Sept. 3, 1939 and Sept. 2, 1945.

KING GEORGE VI CORONATION MEDAL

One of 10,089 medals awarded to Canadians to commemorate the coronation on May 12, 1937.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II CORONATION MEDAL

One of 12,500 medals awarded to Canadians to commemorate the coronation on June 2, 1953.

CANADIAN CENTENNIAL MEDAL

One of 29,500 medals awarded on the recommendation of governments and associations in commemoration of the centennial of the Confederation of Canada in 1867.

COLONIAL AUXILIARY FORCES LONG SERVICE MEDAL

Awarded to warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men for 20 years of service (war years counted double) in the non-permanent active militia between Feb. 4, 1902 and Sept. 23, 1931.

CANADIAN EFFICIENCY DECORATION and BAR

Awarded to commissioned officers for 20 years of meritorious service (war years counted double) in the non-permanent active militia. The bar was awarded for 20 additional years of service. Recipients of the decoration were permitted to use the initials ED after their name.

JEWISH BRIGADE GROUP

The language was Hebrew, which was almost entirely Palestinian, and whose personnel hailed originally from every country but Britain. Former refugees from Germany; men who had run away from Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, for fear of the descending Nazis; early pioneers who had 'gone up' to 'build the land' twenty and thirty years ago from Russia and Poland; romantic-looking, dark-skinned Yemenite Jews, black Falashas from Abyssinia. These were the bulk of the fifty-four countries which were represented in the Brigade, but which were not all welded into the new Palestinian spirit and tradition.

The formation of the Jewish Brigade had been politically and militarily controversial. Churchill supported the idea, which was pressed by the Zionist leader, Doctor Chaim Weizmann, because he felt it would be sort of rough justice to enable the Jews 'to get at the murderers of their fellow-countrymen.' Neither the War office nor the C.-in-C. [Commander in Chief] Middle East were keen on the proposal. From a political angle they thought 'that the Zionists desire to have their men trained at our expense, in active operations'; and militarily they objected to the diversion of effort needed for training and equipment. The War Office fought a long losing battle in which the formation of a Jewish Division was mooted but turned down as impracticable. C.-in-C. Middle East was eventually instructed to form a brigade group although he maintained he could only provide a brigade from Jewish sources. Gaps were filled by British units. The Order of Battle was:

- 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Battalions Palestine Regiment
- 643rd (Palestine) Field Company, RE. [engineers]
- 178th (Palestine) Company, RA S.C. [service corps]
- Jewish Brigade Group Ordnance Field Park and Workshop Sections
- 200th Field Regiment (one battery Jewish), RA [artillery] *
- Brigade and Field Regiment Signals *
- 140th Field Ambulance *
- * Indicates British units.

Citations

WALSH, Geoffrey, Lieutenant-Colonel - Distinguished Service Order - Engineers - awarded as per Canada Gazette dated 25 September 1943 and CARO/3791 dated 6 November 1943. Educated at Royal Military College; served in Canadian Army until 1964. His postings included command of the Northwest Highway System in 1946, command of 27th Infantry Brigade in Europe (1951) and last Chief of the General Staff with rank of Lieutenant-General. Died in Ottawa, 3 April 1999, aged 90. Recommended for immediate award by Major-General G.G. Simonds, General Officer Commanding, 1 Canadian Infantry Division, on or about 24 July 1943; document with Headquarters, 30 Corps, 30 July to 1 August 1943 (supported by Lieutenant-General O.W.H. Leese); with Headquarters, Eighth Army, 3-6 August 1943 (supported by General B.L.Montgomery); with Headquarters, 15 Army Group, 7 August to 9 September 1943 (approved by General Harold R. Alexander).

During the assault of 2 Canadian Infantry Brigade on Leonforte, 21/22 July 1943, it was essential that an enemy demolition be bridged in order that supporting arms for the brigade could be moved forward. The bridging site at the time was under heavy enemy machine gun and mortar fire. The operation was done in the dark by 3 Canadian Field Company, but owing to the vital importance of this bridge, Lieutenant-Colonel Walsh as Commander Royal Engineers personally supervised the effort. Some 40 Germans and three German tanks were within 50 yards of the bridging site rendering it almost impossible for infantry to secure covering positions. Lieutenant-Colonel Walsh ignored the incessant small arms fire which ricocheted off the bridge members, rushed through the construction, and as a result the bridge was open for traffic at 0210 hours, well in advance of schedule, enabling the necessary supporting arms to cross and conclude the successful drive on Leonforte.

WALSH, Geoffrey, Brigadier, DSO - Commander, Order of the British Empire - awarded as per Canada Gazette dated 23 December 1944 and CARO/5235 dated 3 January 1945.

In training prior to operations in France, in the planning stage and in the execution of the engineer work within 2 Canadian Corps, Brigadier Walsh has shown exceptional ability and assiduous application to his duties. The successful bridging of the River Orne in front of Caen and the opening of roads through the town was very largely attributable to the organizational ability and personal supervision of Brigadier Walsh. His work has been very much above the average of what might have been expected of his post.

WALSH, Geoffrey, Brigadier, DSO - Mention in Dispatches - awarded as per Canada Gazette and CARO/5801, both dated 23 June 1945.

WALSH, Geoffrey, Brigadier, CBE, DSO - Mention in Dispatches - awarded as per Canada Gazette dated 9 March 1946 and CARO/6431 dated 8 March 1946.

WALSH, Geoffrey, Brigadier, DSO - Legion of Merit, Degree of Commander (United States) - awarded as per Canada Gazette dated 30 March 1946 and CARO/6478 dated 1 April 1946. Recommended by Brigadier J.F.A. Lister (Chief of Staff, Deputy Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, First Canadian Army); document at Headquarters, First Canadian Army, 15-21 July 1945 when signed off by General H.D.G. Crerar.

Brigadier Walsh served as Chief Engineer, 2 Canadian Corps from July [1944] when it was first committed in the Northwest European theatre of operations until early in September when he was appointed Chief Engineer, First Canadian Army. He has served in the latter capacity through the balance of the campaign.

The role of the Engineers during these operations was one of great importance. Due in large part to this officer's unusual organizing and executive ability, however, this arm of the service successfully met all the varied demands which were made upon it. Under his leadership and example, moreover, its personnel displayed in the execution of their tasks the greatest gallantry, initiative and resource. This officer has throughout the campaign distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services.

WALSH, Geoffrey, Brigadier, CBE, DSO - Commander, Order of Orange-Nassau with Swords (Netherlands) - awarded as per Canada Gazette dated 22 March 1947 and Canadian Army Order 12/47 dated 31 March 1947.

DSO Citation

“On 9 October 1943, Lieutenant Colonel Bogert, leading his battalion by night during its advance to GILDONE came under heavy machine gun fire while crossing the river south of JELSI. In the face of sustained fire, Lieutenant Colonel Bogert coolly and skillfully directed a flanking movement which dislodged the enemy from their positions. When the enemy withdrew to the hills beyond the river line and occupied prepared positions on commanding ridges, Lieutenant Colonel Bogert, by a quick, accurate appreciation and cool, forceful leadership retained the initiative.

Driving the enemy from their new positions and inflicting many casualties, he led his regiment through a pouring rain to its final objective, over ground which, owing to deep mud rendered movement under fire difficult and hazardous. Lieutenant Colonel Bogert's leadership and skill, his determination and courage, were responsible for the complete success of an operation which enabled flanking battalions to maintain a rapid advance.
